ANOTHER COLLECTION

Scottish Dance Tunes and Airs by Eric Allan

Having reached a fairly respectable old age, I can look back with gratitude to all the good people with whom I have shared the joy of music and to the players and composers who have contributed to our rich musical heritage.

Since the last of my books was published in 2010, I seem to have written a few tunes, so here they are. I make no claims for their quality, but I have enjoyed playing them, so I hope you do too. Some were composed for friends or special places, and many to raise money for the charity Friends of Highland Music. There is a collection of little tunes written as an entertainment for a group of friends on a painting trip to Orkney (pp 40 - 43). The enforced lockdown in 2020 produced a flurry of music for us to play to keep ourselves busy (pp 44- 54). Finally, the Tam o' Shanter suite, inspired of course by Burns' epic poem.

Enjoy.
